

Off-Campus Study Quick Facts

ACM & Knox College
Partners in higher education since 1958.

WHY ACM?

Knox College is one of a select number of member schools in the Associated Colleges of the Midwest (ACM) consortium. As a result, choosing an ACM program can offer you several advantages:

- An on-campus faculty advisor for every ACM program.
- Course credits which should easily transfer to your college.
- Ease in the use of Financial Aid for your program.
- No application fee to apply to ACM programs.
- A long history of students from your college attending ACM programs.

CAMPUS APPLICATION PROCEDURES

1. Complete the Knox Application for Approval to Study Off-Campus, which gives you permission to study off-campus
2. Complete the ACM application for the program in which you hope to participate. Applications can be obtained from the on-campus program advisor or the Center for Global Studies.

CAMPUS DEADLINES

January 6, 2010 - Application deadline for Fall 2010 Japan Study program.

February 1, 2010 - Application deadline for all other off-campus study programs for the 2010-2011 academic year.

FACULTY PROGRAM ADVISORS

Botswana - Jon Wagner

Chicago Arts - Neil Blackadder

Chicago Business, Entrepreneurship, & Society - John Spittell

Chicago Urban Studies - Duane Oldfield

Costa Rica - Robin Ragan

Florence/London & Florence - Nick Regiacorte

India - Robin Ragan

Japan - Ryohei Matsuda

Newberry Seminar - Steve Fineberg

Oak Ridge Science Semester - Thomas Clayton

Tanzania - Jennifer Templeton & James Mountjoy

CENTER FOR GLOBAL STUDIES STAFF

Robin Ragan - Director, Center for Global Studies (x. 7394 or x. 7082)

Karen Hawkinson - Coordinator, Center for Global Studies (x. 7323)

STUDENT CAMPUS COORDINATOR

Caroline Castro - ccastro@knox.edu

Alumna of ACM London & Florence program, Spring 2009

Want more information? Go to:
www.acm.edu/knox